1. On 13 June 2014, the Polar Capital Income Opportunities Fund was re-named from the Polar Capital Financials Income Fund which was launched on 15 October 2009 (the HIM Income Fund, launched October 2009, was merged into the Polar Capital Financials Income Fund on 1 July 2011).

 2. Historic yield is based on a NAV per share of £1.56 and income of £0.0650 per unit paid in the last 12 months, based on GBP Institutional distribution units. WARNING: Investors should note that historic yield does not measure the overall performance of a fund. It is possible for a fund to lose money overall but to have a positive historic yield. Historic yield cannot be considered as being similar to the interest rate an investor would earn on a savings account.

Fund Manager's Comments

Equity markets fell during the first week of March as ramifications of the sanctions put in place by the US, UK, European and other governments to Russia's invasion of Ukraine impacted sentiment. Nevertheless, a sharp rally over the remainder of the month resulted in equity markets recovering to a level higher than that preceding the war. Against this background, the Fund's unit price rose by 1.6%* while our benchmark index, the STOXX Financials Index, rose 2.6%

Fund performance

The largest contributors to performance during the month were our holdings in OSB Group, a UK bank, and Hibernia REIT. The former rose on a strong set of earnings and the announcement of an inaugural buyback, while the latter, a relatively recent purchase, announced an agreed cash takeover by a subsidiary of one of Brookfield Asset Management's real estate funds. The deal was set at a c35% premium to the share price preceding the announcement of the offer.

While the biggest drag on performance in March were our holdings in Ground Rents Income Fund and Wells Fargo, neither on any news of note, the biggest drag on performance year-to-date has been our fixed income portfolio. On current metrics, according to Bank of America, 2022 is setting up to be the worst year for government bonds since 1949. US high yield bonds have fallen 4.7%, US investment grade bonds 8.4% and European Bank AT1 bonds 4.3%. Conversely, our fixed income portfolio has fallen 1.8% (before taking into account hedges, this reduces the fall to 0.6%).

Looking forward, there are reasons to believe a global economic expansion can and will continue in 2022, despite the myriad of current challenges. The stock of excess savings, for example, remains considerable across US and Western European households, at c8-10% of GDP, while labour markets are strong with Eurozone unemployment currently at record lows (6.8% in February), and US close to its 50-year low at 3.8%. Labour-force participation has also been increasing in the US, with the non-farm payrolls' average more than 500,000 over the past six months.

Current thoughts

However, for the time being we remain cautiously positioned with higher cash levels, some equity index hedges and stock put options in place. Rising commodity prices and increased costs of delivering those commodities due to the war in Ukraine and sanctions put in place by US, UK, European and other governments will be a significant drag on growth. Any shortages will likely result in sentiment taking a further hit and there remains a tail risk that the war escalates.

Furthermore, with central banks raising interest rates, there will be an additional headwind to growth. During the month, the Federal Reserve joined the Bank of England, Norges Bank and Bank of Canada by raising interest rates 25bps. This is in addition to signalling that balance sheet reduction could potentially start from May. In total, 34 central banks raised interest rates in March, taking the total number of hiking actions for the first quarter of the year to an unprecedented 75.

Against this background the 2-10-year US government bond yield curve inverted. It has been a reasonable predictor of recessions over the past 30 years with a lead time of around 18 months; however, prior to that it has given a number of false signals. Historical data also shows that equity markets, on average, continue to rise for some time, and the three-month/two-year US government bond yield curve is a much better predictor of recessions. It has steepened markedly this year, in contrast suggesting that the next recession, when there is one, will be further out.

Fund activity

We took advantage of the selloff in financial markets to purchase a holding in UBS 5% AT1 Bond with a prospective yield of 9.4% to its next call date in January 2023. We also purchased a holding in Chesnara 4.75% Tier 2 bond on a yield of 6%. New holdings were also purchased in Intercontinental Exchange, an equities and commodities exchange which has a market capitalisation of $73bn, and Greencoat Renewables, which invests in windfarms and will benefit if power prices in Europe remain elevated due to the war in Ukraine.

Nevertheless, we significantly reduced our exposure to consumer finance companies during the month which are likely to be most impacted in the short term as disposable income is squeezed by the rise in energy and food prices. We sold our equity holding in Provident Financial and reduced our equity holding in International Personal Financial, while also reducing our bond holdings in Provident Financial and Bayport Management. While we expect these companies to weather any downturn, it is likely that their share prices will be volatile until there is more certainty on the outlook.

Risks

- Capital is at risk and there is no guarantee the Fund will achieve its objective. Investors should make sure their attitude towards risk is aligned with the risk profile of the Fund.
- Past performance is not a reliable guide to future performance. The value of investments may go down as well as up and you might get back less than you originally invested.
- The value of a fund's assets may be affected by uncertainties such as international political developments, market sentiment, economic conditions, changes in government policies, restrictions on foreign investment and currency repatriation, currency fluctuations and other developments in the laws and regulations of countries in which investment may be made. Please see the Fund's Prospectus for details of all risks.

- The Fund may enter into a derivative contract. The Fund's use of derivatives carries the risk of reduced liquidity, substantial loss and increased volatility in adverse market conditions, such as failure amongst market participants.

- The use of derivatives will result in the Fund being leveraged (where market exposure and the potential for loss exceeds the amount the Fund has invested) and in these market conditions the effect of leverage will magnify losses. The Fund makes extensive use of derivatives.
- If the currency of the share class is different from the local currency in the country in which you reside, the figures shown in this document may increase or decrease if converted into your local currency.
