Fund Managers' Comments

Continued uncertainty relating to the economic impact from the war in Ukraine weighed on the sector during the month. MSCI ACWI Financials rose 0.9% in March relative to a 2.2% rise in MSCI ACWI, with strength in insurance and diversified financials offset by weakness in the banking sector (all figures in dollar terms). Despite the relative weakness in the month, global financials outperformed broader markets by 4.9% in the first quarter of the year. The Fund's NAV (USD$ I Acc Share Class) fell 2.2% in the month, affected primarily by its overweight position in US banks, along with the underweight in Australia and Japan, as investors reassessed the macro outlook.

US

US financials fell 0.6% in March driven by weakness in US banks (-6.9%), which was partially offset by strength in insurance (+7.3%) and diversified financials (+1.2%). Sentiment towards the banking sector was affected by a flattening in the yield curve (2yr-10yr), which inverted towards the end of the month. The movements in bond markets occurred following a revaluation of the macro outlook in response to a supply-driven inflation shock related to the Ukrainian crisis. This has come alongside relatively hawkish central bank commentary, with Fed Chairman Jerome Powell indicating rate hikes at each of the six remaining meetings this year.

While we recognise that the growth outlook has moderated and the war in Ukraine has added to inflationary pressures, a recession is not our base case. Importantly, the labour market remains strong (+431,000 jobs in March), savings rates are high (US households have built up $2.1trn during Covid, $17,000 per household), wage growth is rising (in line with inflation for the lowest income quartile) and financing conditions, while tightening, remain highly stimulative, with real rates negative at -2.3% (real policy rates were +2% on average looking back at the past seven US recessions). It is also important to put the 2yr-10yr yield curve inversion in context as other yield curves are not indicating a recession (10yr-3m has been steepening), and adjusted for inflation, the real 2yr-10yr curve remains upward sloping.

We remain positive on US banks (the Fund's key overweight) which are highly geared to rising short-term rates and improving loan demand, which we expect to more than offset the headwinds from cost inflation and a normalisation in provisioning. However, in recognition of a more uncertain environment, we reduced the overweight during the month (primarily through the sale of Regions Financial) and added to more defensive sectors (non-life insurance, payments and exchanges).

Europe

European financials were also affected by weakness in the banking sector (-3.2%, in dollar terms) with sentiment driven by developments in Ukraine. Visibility on the scale and duration of the indirect impacts on the region from the war remains low. However, it is clear that Europe is now facing a combination of slower growth, higher inflation and higher interest rates. This has led to earnings estimates being cut in aggregate for the sector although there is a large degree of variation depending on the level of direct exposure to Russia, with higher provisioning and cost estimates being partly offset by higher interest rate expectations.

The ECB noted that European banks' exposure to Russia appears contained and dismissed the possibility of a blanket ban on bank dividends. Given excess capital levels, the outlook for European bank capital return is strong, with the yield premium to the broader market at a historical high. The Fund has no direct exposure to Russia with our European bank exposure concentrated in core Europe and the UK. During the month OSB (UK challenger bank) reported encouraging FY21 results, highlighting the opportunity for specialist banks in the region. OSB reported a 20% ROE supported by NIM expansion as well as strong cost efficiency (26% C/I) and announced a £100m buy-back (total yield of 8.9%).

Asia

Asian financials performed broadly in line during the month, with weakness in China offset by strength in Australia (+13%, in dollar terms), Indonesia (+2.8%) and Malaysia (+2.9%), all beneficiaries of rising commodity prices. In light of the improving macro outlook in Indonesia, supported by containment of the Omicron wave and a tailwind from rising commodity prices, we added to our Indonesia exposure during the month (BCA and BRI).

China's zero-Covid policy continues to weigh on economic activity, with PMI data in March coming below expectations and highlighting a contraction in both manufacturing and services. The Omicron wave has led to more shutdowns in China (restrictions implemented in Shanghai and Shenzhen during the month), and though Hong Kong has eased certain measures (reducing quarantine for international arrivals to one week), the strict rules continue to impact the economy. While there have been signs of policy easing in China (property restrictions eased, SME tax cuts and accelerated infrastructure investment), we have concerns about the continued drag from Covid restrictions (the Fund has no direct exposure to China) given the combination of vaccine hesitancy and relatively low levels of acquired immunity from previous exposure.

Outlook

There are a number of cross-currents impacting the outlook which range from improving mobility as Covid fears fade (although unevenly spread across regions), rising inflationary pressures, elevated geopolitical risk and a normalisation in monetary policy. Rising prices are impacting purchasing power, but both household and corporate balance sheets are strong while the rate environment remains highly accommodative. Given a reduction in visibility and a moderation in the growth outlook, we have taken a slightly more defensive positioning but remain constructive on the outlook for the sector. With bank stocks trading at pre-Covid lows in terms of relative valuations, offering attractive yields and set to see material tailwinds to earnings from higher interest rates, we view an attractive risk/reward but acknowledge that increased visibility on the potential fallout from the Ukrainian war is likely required before market sentiment improves.

Risks

- Capital is at risk and there is no guarantee the Fund will achieve its objective. Investors should make sure their attitude towards risk is aligned with the risk profile of the Fund.
- Past performance is not a reliable guide to future performance. The value of investments may go down as well as up and you might get back less than you originally invested.
- The value of a fund's assets may be affected by uncertainties such as international political developments, market sentiment, economic conditions, changes in government policies, restrictions on foreign investment and currency repatriation, currency fluctuations and other developments in the laws and regulations of countries in which investment may be made. Please see the Fund's Prospectus for details of all risks.

- The Fund may enter into a derivative contract. The Fund's use of derivatives carries the risk of reduced liquidity, substantial loss and increased volatility in adverse market conditions, such as failure amongst market participants.

- The use of derivatives will result in the Fund being leveraged (where market exposure and the potential for loss exceeds the amount the Fund has invested) and in these market conditions the effect of leverage will magnify losses. The Fund makes extensive use of derivatives.
- If the currency of the share class is different from the local currency in the country in which you reside, the figures shown in this document may increase or decrease if converted into your local currency.
