Fund Managers Comments

As at 29 January 2021

North American equities started off the New Year on a weaker note following the strong run in the final quarter of 2020. The fund (US$ I Share Class) declined 2%, versus the 1% (in dollar terms) decline for the MSCI North America Net Total Return Index (the fund's benchmark).

The month was characterised by some remarkable events, most notably the storming of the US Capitol building on 6 January. Of more relevance to American businesses from a political perspective, thanks to Democrat victories in both contested Senate seats in the Georgia runoffs, President Joe Biden now has control of both houses of Congress, yet his majority in neither is sufficient to enact some of his party's more radical agenda. However, it seems he does have the support to push through a third major round of economic stimulus, which clearly has implications for many stocks in our investment universe, the dollar and potentially even inflation expectations. Please see our recent updates for a more in-depth look at what we feel is shaping up to be a different investment environment in the coming years.

Among the top contributors to relative performance were Stitch Fix, an online fashion curator and retailer, Applied Materials, a supplier of equipment to the semiconductor industry, and IAC/InterActive Corp, a media and internet holding company. Stitch Fix continued its strong move following its earnings release in early December, but the stock move has dwarfed the improvement in fundamentals, and as a result we have pared back the position. Applied Materials continued its recent strong run with little company-specific news. Meanwhile, IAC/InterActive Corp pre-announced strong Q4 metrics as well as announcing it has raised external capital for its video-sharing platform, Vimeo, doubling its valuation since the last external capital raise in November 2020. Vimeo is due to be spun out to shareholders later this year and is the latest example of the company's judicious capital allocation and strong track record in growing promising internet consumer businesses.

Among the top detractors to relative performance were Arch capital, an insurance company, SS&C Technologies Holdings, a financial software and services company, and Fiserv, a financial software and payments company. Arch Capital underperformed after disclosing higher than expected catastrophe losses for Q420, but this should not have an impact on the long-term value creation of the business. There was no material stock-specific news on SS&C Technologies Holdings or Fiserv.
